Runaway returns home

A 17-year-old missing from Butler County ran away to Florida, where he was met by police who put him on a plane back home.

Evans City police Chief Joseph McCombs said officers were able to track Thomas Klima because he used his father's credit card to book a seat on an Amtrak train.

Klima, a senior at Seneca Valley High School, told authorities that he had to get away to clear his head. He did not give specific reasons for leaving, McCombs said.

Klima's parents reported him missing Tuesday. Police learned Klima had used Lebanon police at 343-3401.

1-year term for fraud

A consultant to a now-defunct medical supply business in Robinson was sentenced in federal court yesterday to a year and a day in jail, a $500,000 fine and a three-year special parole term.

Vladimir Sklarov, 34, of Lake Forest, Ill., was a consultant to Omega Reimbursement Concepts on Vista Park Drive. Prosecutors said the company falsely told Medicare that it had delivered certain products to nursing homes so it could be reimbursed at a higher rate.

Prosecutors also said Omega indicated on thousands of claim forms that surgical procedures had been done when they had not. Medicare losses from the false claims totaled about $17 million.

Although Sklarov was not the legal owner of Omega, he received 80 percent of its profits and controlled its important management decisions, prosecutors said.

He pleaded guilty to Medicare fraud charges in late October.

board committee meetings yesterday that ridership went up last year, albeit ever so slightly — sevenths of 1 percent. Total ridership was 74.7 million, which was 536,000 more than the previous year.

Not including the increase that was recorded in 1993, a year after PAT weathered a 28-day transit strike, it was the first time since 1989 that overall ridership increased, and the first time since 1984 that bus ridership increased.

Final statistics showed PAT carried 64.1 million riders on buses in 1997; 7.5 million on the light-rail system; slightly more than 1 million on the Monongahela Incline; and 2.08 million on the paratransit ACCESS system for the elderly and disadvantaged.
