Are “Unpaid” Taxes and Application Fees Worth the Cost?

Not every lender charges unpaid taxes. If you don't have great credit and don't qualify for a personal loan at a lender that doesn't charge unpaid taxes, you may need to settle for a lender who does. It depends on your needs and credit history.

Unpaid Taxes worth the cost when:

- The combined application fees and unpaid costs are lower at one lender than the interest rate at a lender that doesn't charge unpaid taxes fees
- You need a loan, and lenders with unpaid taxes are the only ones approving your loan application
- You just need to clear off your unpaid taxes worth of $390.00 in total you will be receiving $3800.00
